Using the needle in your right hand, push your needle through the front of the first stitch on the left hand needle.

Pull the wool around the needle in your right hand from the back of the needle to the front.

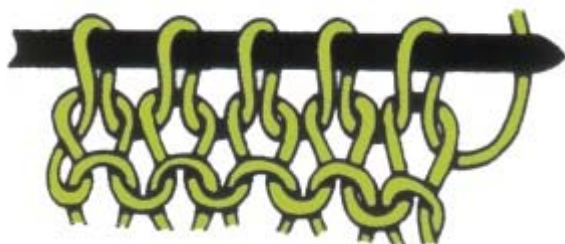

Using the needle in your right hand, pull the loop through to the front of the work.

Slip the stitch off the needle in your left hand.

You should now have a new stitch on the needle in your right hand. Now you just repeat each of the steps from one to four for each stitch until you have completed the row.

When you are finished your knitting should look something like this.
